

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

WERTHEIMER LEA AND CO. PRINTERS

TO THE
Most Honourable
THE MARQUIS CAMDEN.

MY LORD MARQUIS,

HAVING completed my second volume of Epitaphs in the Churchyards and Cemeteries of St. Pancras, I have the honour to dedicate the result of my labours to your lordship, and I humbly and gratefully acknowledge that permission being granted.

I have the honour to be

Your Lordship's most obedient and most humble Servant,

FREDERICK TEAGUE CANSICK.

January, 1872.

P R E F A C E.

HAVING at length brought to a close the present work, which for several years has occupied the leisure time I had from business, I freely submit it to the impartial judgment of the public.

The great success attending my first, prompted me to bring to a successful conclusion this my second volume, thus completing my selections from the Churches, Churchyards and Cemeteries of St. Pancras, in Middlesex.

I am not unmindful of the shortcomings of this volume, but I trust the care taken to make it as correct as possible, and the addition of illustrations of arms belonging to many families, will increase its value, and that it will prove acceptable to my readers.

The descriptions of the armorial bearings represented in the several monuments will doubtless be of interest to many. The difficulty, however, of obtaining an accurate account of them, owing to the injury which many have sustained by exposure to weather and other causes, must be my apology for any inaccuracies in their renderings. Several subscribers have furnished me with valuable information illustrative of various inscriptions, but want of space has prevented their insertion.

It was my intention to have added more notes to the distinguished characters whose names are inserted, but want of space prevented my doing so, much to my disappointment.

The kindness which J. J. Howard, Esq., LL.D., has shown by valuable assistance throughout the progress of the work, is deserving of my special acknowledgement, as also the interest manifested in it by others who have endeavoured to promote its circulation.

INTRODUCTION.

Highgate Cemetery.

THIS ground is the property of the London Cemetery Company, which was incorporated by Act of Parliament, in 1839. It is situated in the bay formed by the west and east hills, leading to the town of Highgate, and faces the south.

No cemetery in or out of London can boast so many natural beauties. Unlike many cemeteries, which are more like reclaimed swamps, it is elevated, and not only enjoys a natural drainage, but the main drainage of the north extends along the base of the hills.

The irregularity of the ground, rising in terraces, the winding paths leading through avenues of shrubberies and marble monuments, and the groups of majestic trees, contribute many material charms to this solemn region.

The London Cemetery Company were among the early promoters of that reform which was so long needed, and which could only be carried out by men of energy and enterprise. It was founded by Stephen Geary, Esq., who also acted as architect to the company, and to whose judgment in selecting the spot, and so tastefully laying out the ground, may be given the credit for the great success attending the work.

The approach from the Highgate Road, at the top of Kentish Town, is by Swaine's Lane ; bounded on the north by St. Anne's Church, built at the cost of Miss Barnett to the memory of her brother, and above which is Holly Lodge and grounds, the residence of Baroness Burdett Coutts. On the south side is a row of modern villas, beyond which is Holly Village, built at the expense of Baroness Burdett Coutts, and intended by her to form a background to the view across her grounds. The villas were designed by Mr. Darbishire, and are quite an ornament to this portion of the lane.

At the top of the lane on the left is the entrance to the cemetery ; on the left of the entrance is the chapel, which is admirably fitted for its solemn purpose.

The interior of this sacred edifice is spacious and lofty.

The absence of any unnecessary ornament produces an effect of simplicity very appropriate.

A bier stands at the western end which can be lowered through an aperture in the floor by hydraulic pressure. The object of this bier is to convey the coffin to the subterranean passage below, at the termination of the service in the chapel, so as to facilitate its conveyance to the new ground on the opposite side of the lane. This, if anything, adds to the solemnity of the building and its uses.

On leaving the chapel we turn to the right, pass by the lodge for the superintendent, and ascend a flight of broad stone steps which leads up towards the church of St. Michael which crowns the summit, appearing from distant parts of the ground to great advantage, and which even seems, at a hasty glance, to appertain to the cemetery.

As we ascend the hill we see on the left an archway of Egyptian character, which forms the entrance to the catacombs, in which the coffins are placed in cavities formed by the most solid masonry.

Leaving the catacombs, we find ourselves almost immediately on a broad level terrace with a handsome balustrade, at the very foot of the church.

The view from this point is remarkably fine, and is alone worth a visit, some half-dozen counties being visible on a fine day.

The beauties of the place, indeed, appear to be fully appreciated, for the gardens are daily filled with persons evidently enjoying the quiet, the pure air and the splendid landscape.

The cemetery of St. George the Martyr, Queen Square, is in the parish of St. Pancras, and is situated in Henrietta Street, Brunswick Square. It is closed for interment, and is in a very sad state—the stones falling over and broken, the trees uncut, and the wood growing wild. It has all the appearance of a wilderness, and is a standing disgrace to the parish.

The cemetery of the wealthy parish of St. George's, Bloomsbury, also joins the above, and is a little better cared for, but in many instances the inscriptions are almost obliterated. This should not be. Will no churchman look to this, and see that the resting-place of departed Christians is worthy of its name.

St. Andrew's, on the border of the parish, in the Gray's Inn Road, is a large open space containing very few monuments of any interest.

St. Giles'-in-the-Fields is in the Old St. Pancras Road, adjoining the old parish church of St. Pancras, and is in a ruinous state, children being allowed to wander about the ground and destroy the tombs with impunity.

The beautiful monument erected to the wife of Sir John Soane was battered with stones, and the carving destroyed. The cost of keeping some old pensioner to watch over the grounds would be very trifling, and would prevent such unseemly sights.

St. Martin's-in-the-Fields has a ground in Pratt Street, Camden Town. This is kept in better order, and reflects some credit on the parish owning it.

* This respected gentleman, it was supposed, left property amounting to nearly three millions sterling, acquired chiefly by contracts for provisioning the navy during the war, and also in extensive business as a shipowner. About eighteen months before his death an attempt was made upon his life by one of his captains. He had taken shortly before his demise the late residence of Mr. Long Wellesley in Dover Street. His fortune devolved upon his two daughters, the eldest of whom, Elizabeth, was married, July 8, 1830, to Lord Edward Thynne, the fifth son of the Marquis of Bath, and brother to the Duchess of Buccleuch; and the younger was married, February 22, 1834, to the Earl of Glengall. Mr. Mellish also left a widow. His remains were first interred at Wapping, where also were those of his father, the late Peter Mellish, Esq., brother and mother, all of whom were removed and interred at Highgate Cemetery, at the closing of the vaults under Wapping Church. Mr. Mellish died in Dover Street, January 27.

Sacred to the memory of
ROBERT LISTON, F.R.S.,* late Professor of Clinical Surgery
in University College, London,
Member of the Council, & an Examiner of the Royal College of Surgeons of England.

Born October 28th, 1794, Died December 7th, 1847.

* Robert Liston, F.R.S., died in Clifford Street. He was the son of the Rev. Henry Liston, minister of Ecclesmachan, a clergyman of the Established Church of Scotland, in the county of Linlithgow. He was born on October 28, 1794. After completing the usual academical and professional course of education, he became a graduate of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh and London, and established himself in the former city in the year 1817. He married, in 1820, a daughter of Adam Crawford, Esq., wine merchant, of Leith. He delivered lectures, first on anatomy and afterwards on surgery, from 1822 to 1834. He speedily rose into eminence, both as a lecturer and operator, and in this latter capacity he has had few rivals and no superior. He was a most ardent, anxious, and indefatigable student of anatomy. Nor when he had attained the highest eminence in his profession, did his zeal or assiduity in the study of this department of science in any degree relax. On this head he considered the education of a surgeon could never be complete. At the termination of his professional studies in 1815, he was appointed house-surgeon to the Royal Infirmary of Edinburgh, in which he created such reforms that he received the strongest testimonials of his important services to that institution. Notwithstanding his rising reputation he failed in attaining the Professorship of Surgery in the University of Edinburgh, which was at one time the object of his ambition. In the year 1833, he published his "Principles of Surgery," which passed through several improved editions. In the year 1834, Mr. Liston was appointed surgeon to the North London Hospital, in the parish of St. Pancras. He subsequently became Professor of Clinical Surgery in University College, and continued until his death one of the brightest ornaments of that important institution. On his leaving Edinburgh, in November, 1834, a public entertainment was given to him, presided over by the chief magistrate, supported by the most eminent professional men in the city. In the year 1846, he was appointed one of the examiners of the Royal College of Surgeons. His practice in London soon became extensive and steadily increased; his reputation was now established, and his name familiar in every school of medicine in Europe and America. He was a fervid lover of truth and sincerity, and his attachments, once formed, were lasting. "His sympathies were with everything open, manly, and honest." The funeral of this celebrated surgeon took place on Monday, December 13, 1848. The procession set out for Highgate Cemetery at half-past nine, from the deceased's residence in Clifford Street, and it consisted at first of five mourning coaches, and fifteen private carriages. In the former were relatives and his fellow medical professors of University College, and in the latter were friends of eminence in the higher ranks. At Swain's Lane, near the cemetery, the cortège was met by four hundred of Mr. Liston's former pupils, and by about two hundred medical gentlemen and others. The service was read in Highgate Church by the Rector, so as to accommodate the large number present. The family vault in which Mr. Liston was interred is in the Terrace catacombs, the first tenant being Mr. Dalrymple, sen., of Norwich.

WILLIAM DALRYMPLE,* late Consulting Surgeon to the Norfolk and Norwich Hospitals,
Born August 17th, 1772, Died Decr. 5th, 1847.

JOHN DALRYMPLE, Esq., F.R.S.,
of No. 60, Grosvenor Street, Grosvenor Square, Fellow and Member of the Council of the Royal College of Surgeons in London, eldest son of Wm. Dalrymple, Esq., late of Norwich.
Born 17th April, 1804,
Died 2nd May, 1852.

* William Dalrymple was a native of Norwich, and was born in 1772 ; he was educated at the Grammar School at Aylesham in Norfolk, then under the tuition of Mr. North. From Aylesham he was removed to the free school at Norwich, where he became a favourite pupil of the celebrated Dr. Parr, the head master. In accordance with the rule of medical apprenticeships to extend to seven years he was obliged to leave school at the age of fourteen. Mr. Dalrymple was apprenticed to Messrs. Devaynes & Hingeston, the court apothecaries of that day, and his surgical studies were pursued at the then united Hospitals of St. Thomas's and Guy's, under those eminent men, the elder Clive and Sir Astley Cooper. In 1793, he returned to Norwich and opened a surgery in his father's house. For some years his professional progress was slow, owing to his views upon civil and religious polity, which were at that time considered inconsistent with loyalty and good citizenship. In 1812, he was invited to become assistant surgeon to the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital, where, in 1813, he attracted the attention of the medical profession by the successful performance of the then very rare operation of placing a ligature upon the common carotid artery. In 1814 he was appointed surgeon to the above hospital, vacated by the late Dr. Rigby. His career in this noble institution was marked not less by a devoted industry than by the highest anatomical science and surgical skill; his practice was eminently humane, patient, and delicate. His talents and acquirements were now acknowledged by the highest rewards which his native town could offer, and he was called on to fill almost every public office connected with his profession which could be bestowed upon him. In 1839, in his 67th year, his powers at length gave way, and finding himself no longer equal to his hospital practice he resigned his position, receiving a cordial acknowledgment from the governors. In 1844 he finally retired from professional life, and with the most praiseworthy generosity presented the entire contents of his museum, which had cost him years of labour, to the Norfolk and Norwich Hospital. This noble gift was gratefully acknowledged by the governors, and an inscription was placed in the New Museum Room, which had been erected by public subscription to receive the collection. Scrupulous in honour himself, he venerated honourable and elevating principles, and ever spoke of them with enthusiasm. Mr. Dalrymple was married in July, 1799, to Miss Marianne Bertram.

LOUIS HAYES PETIT,*
of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law, who died on the 13th day of November, in the year
of our Lord 1849,
aged 75.

His varied information,
his uniform cheerfulness of temper and active benevolence,
secured him the esteem of all who knew him,
his own uprightness of principle and his discernment
of it in others,
made his friendships honourable,
his sound judgment made them valuable ;
the kindness of his disposition made them numerous,
the firmness and steadiness of his character made them lasting.

They who loved him
cherish the remembrance of his virtues with affection and gratitude,
but they rest not on these their hopes of his everlasting welfare,
for he built not upon that foundation,
but constantly remembered that the best of his works could only be accepted in heaven
thro' the merits of his Redeemer.

Revd. ARTHUR SAVAGE WADE, D.D.,
Vicar of St. Nicholas, Warwick,
Died Nov. 17th, 1845,

He was born in Marlborough Street, November 9, 1774. He was educated at Mr. Newcome's school at Hackney, and was prepared for the University by the Rev. S. Pariby, curate of Stoke-by-Nayland, in Suffolk. He entered at Queen's College, Cambridge, and took the degree of B.A. in 1796, and M.A. in 1799. He studied in the chambers of Mr. Abbott, afterwards Lord Tenterden, and was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in Trinity Term, 1801. He was much noticed by Lord Chief Justice Mansfield, and became a distinguished member of the Oxford circuit, attending also at first the Chester Assizes and the Stafford and Worcester Sessions. He ceased to practice in 1821. In May, 1827, he was returned for the borough of Ripon. He voted against the repeal of the Test and Corporation Acts, and the emancipation of the Roman Catholics; and in favour of the Reform Bill. He retired from Parliament at the end of 1832. He was unmarried, and resided in No. 9, New Square, Lincoln's Inn, from 1802 to the time of his decease. His kind disposition, his cheerfulness and hospitality attached him to a numerous circle of friends. His blameless life, his unostentatious benevolence, his sound judgment, his uniform kindness to all connected with him by friendship or relationship was well-known to all connected with him. He was always a firm and consistent churchman, and was for many years a member of Noby's Club. He was a fellow of many of the learned societies, and a member of the commission of Public Records during the reign of William IV. He was also a director of the Equitable Insurance Company; he held estates in Wolverhampton in mining and agricultural districts, and was Lord of the Manor of Yeading at Hayes, Middlesex. His remains were interred in Highgate Cemetery on Nov. 20, 1849, followed by his nephews as chief mourners, and a numerous body of friends.

medals destined to the most successful students in these classes. He was admitted a member of the College of Surgeons in 1835, and was appointed house-surgeon under Mr. Cooper at University College Hospital in 1836. He subsequently visited Paris; and on his return was appointed, in conjunction with Mr. Ellis, Demonstrator of Anatomy in the College. On the institution of the office of assistant-surgeon at the Hospital, he was appointed to the post, being one of the earliest students of the College who succeeded in obtaining one of its permanent appointments. During the latter part of Mr. S. Cooper's connection with the College, Mr. Morton delivered a portion of the lectures on surgery; and, on the death of Mr. Liston and the retirement of Mr. Cooper, the wish on the part of the students to have Mr. Morton appointed to the vacant chair of surgery led to circumstances which resulted in the retirement of Mr. Syme, who had received the appointment. Though not appointed Professor of Surgery, Mr. Morton was advanced in his position, and made full surgeon to the Hospital. On the death of Mr. Cooper, whose son-in-law he was, he succeeded that gentleman as Surgeon to the Queen's Bench Prison. He was made a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons in 1843. Mr. Morton's distinguished career as a student was followed up by a series of works displaying great knowledge of surgical anatomy and practical acquaintance with the profession of surgery. Mr. Morton was found dead in his bed. He married Mary Anne, daughter of the late Mr. Samuel Cooper, author of the "Surgical Dictionary," and left one daughter.

Beneath

Lie the mortal remains of

SIR JOHN GURNEY,*

Late one of the Barons of the Exchequer.

In a profession which is singularly open to public view, he commanded the respect and goodwill of all who knew him,

and rose by a course of patient and honorable exertion to a distinguished place among the advocates of his day :

called at length to a higher post,

he carried to the bench of justice,

a clear intellect, an inflexible love of right, and a cheerful devotion of all his powers to the public service ;

his private virtues gladdened his own home,

and were the admiration of many beyond it,

but his hope was in Christ, and in Him alone :

* Sir John Gurney was the son of Joseph Gurney, Esq., of Walworth, and his mother was the daughter of William Brodie, Esq., formerly of Mansfield. He died March 1, 1845, at his residence in Lincoln's Inn Fields, aged 76. He was called to the bar at the Inner Temple, May 3, 1793. In the early portion of his professional career he devoted himself sedulously and successfully to Old Bailey practice, and, with his vigorous talents and unceasing industry, he soon obtained a considerable reputation as a criminal lawyer. He selected the Home Circuit and the Court of King's Bench for his professional employment. In Michaelmas term, 1810, he was appointed a King's Counsel ; and in the year 1823, he was called within the bar. The zeal and industry of Mr. Gurney procured for him a large share of business, and in the year 1832, he was raised to the Bench of the Court of Exchequer. Sir J. Gurney retired from the Bench scarcely six weeks before his death. He was a man eminent for his attention to religious duties. In early life he was a member of an independent congregation at Clapham ; but before his elevation to the Bench, he joined the Church of England. Sir J. Gurney married, Dec. 11, 1797, Maria, daughter of William Hawes, M.D., by whom he had a numerous family.

confessing himself an unprofitable servant,

Not twins by birth but twins in death,
Two children here together sleep,
Heav'n snatched at once their fragrant breath,
Then wherefore for them weep
Like rosebuds ere their leaves were blown,
Plucked were they from the parent stem,
But who would live to be full grown
Could die like them.

frame ;
Not funeral cars, nor verse, shall ere explain.
Thy name I carve on silent stone,
Thy call I follow to the world unknown.

To the Memory of ARTHUR, second son of
Thomas Eley,
Who, after a most painful and lingering illness,
Departed this life without a struggle,
And, in sure hope of eternal happiness,
Through the merits of his Redeemer,
On the 28th of May, 1843, in his 20th year.
His Saviour God from above,
Looked down with pity and with love,
And bade his sorrows cease:
Then, from its suff'ring shrine of clay
He bore that trusting soul away
To realms of endless peace.
Before His gracious Father's throne,
He claims that soul to be His own,
Who His protection craved.
In heaven there's joy; for, hark! again
I heard the oft repeated strain,
"Another sinner saved."

By the Presbyterian Congregation
of River Terrace, Islington,
In Memory of their beloved Pastor,
the Rev^d. JOSIAS WILSON, in whose light they rejoiced
for a season,
and for the blessed results
of whose labours many of them shall praise God through eternity.
He was distinguished for ardent piety,
Fervent eloquence, abundant labours,
and pastoral devotedness.
In a comparatively brief career
He concentrated a vast amount of usefulness, and was the instrument in the hands of the Master whom he loved,
of forming or enlarging four prosperous congregations
at Tassagh, Drogheda, Belfast, and London.
He was a zealous witness
for evangelical truth,
fearless in rebuking sin,
an able advocate of Christian Missions,
eminently Catholic in his spirit,
the friend of the young,
the comforter of the afflicted,
and the father of the poor.

After having served his own generation
By the will of God
he fell asleep on the 13th April, 1847, in the 48 year of his age
and the 26th of his Ministry,
Breathing a desire to depart
and to be with Christ.

Mr. Egan's popularity chiefly resulted from the success of his "Life in London," which was published in numbers, illustrated by the clever designs of Mr. George Cruickshank, of 263, Hampstead Road, and which had an unusual run of success when dramatised at the Adelphi Theatre. The following are some of his principal works: "Boxiana; or Sketches of Ancient and Modern Pugilism;" "Life in London: or the Day and Night Scenes of Jerry Hawthorn, Esq., and his elegant friend Corinthian Tom, accompanied by Bob Logic, the Oxonian, in their rambles through the metropolis," "An account of the Trial of John Thurtell and James Hunt," "An account of the Trial of Mr. Fauntleroy, for forgery," "The Life of an Actor," "Life in London," a newspaper commenced in 1824, &c.

To the memory of
HENRY COLMAN,
of Salem, Massachusetts, U.S.,
ob. August 17th, 1849, in London,
aged 65.

In early life a minister of the gospel,
in later years its secular missionary, he devoted himself to the work of studying in various countries of Europe, those facts which bear on the great
interests of humanity,
and in the course of his researches
he brought to light not only an appalling mass of hidden misery, but the means—more especially such as are afforded by agriculture—

of improving the condition and enlarging the resources of the people of each state.

In him the despised and rejected
have lost a brother,
the rich and noble a friend, whose truthfulness won their regard,
whilst it commanded their respect.

His prayer that he might diē at home at last was not fulfilled, but his labors of love came to a close in a kindred land
where his name had ceased to be that of a stranger.

* In this grave likewise lie the remains of Thomas Sotheran (father of the above-mentioned Charles Sotheran), of Lewisham, Kent, gent., who was baptized Sept. 15, 1782, in the parish church of St. Oswald, Oswaldkirk, co. York, and died August 4, 1866, at Lewisham, aged 84; and also of Maria Sotheran, his wife (whom he married April 13, 1812, at Old St. Pancras Church, London), daughter of Charles Price, of Somerset House, London, Esq., and granddaughter of William Phillips, of Witston House, co. Monmouth, Esq., J.P.; she was born 1788 at Abergavenny, co. Monmouth, died September 9, 1868, at Penge, co. Surrey, in her eightieth year, and was interred at Highgate Cemetery, on September 15 following. The father of Mr. Thomas Sotheran was Thomas Sotheran, of Outhouses, near Ampleforth, co. York, gent., descended from a family of minor gentry, which have been seated on their own estates at Ampleforth, Gilling, Oswaldkirk, and other parts of the North Riding of the county of York as early as the sixteenth century, when we find Robert Sotheran, knight, resident at Ampleforth; from his "inq. post mort." in the possession of a descendant, and "taken at Kirby-Moreside, in the county of York, the 16th day of October, in the 20th year of the reign of our Lord James, by the grace of God of England, France, and Ireland, King, defender of the Faith, &c., and in the 56th year of his reign as King of Scotland, before Thomas Lovell, escheator, &c., &c.," we learn that he died on May 1, 1619, and that his son and heir, then aged twenty, was John Sotheran; this Robert Sotheran was a son of William Sotheran, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and is mentioned, together with his father, in the will dated 1582, and proved 1583, of his uncle, John Sotheren, of Newcastle, merchant, who was brother to Stephen Sotheron, sheriff of Newcastle, 1561. The Sotherons had, as monastic and other records show, been before that time settled in the county of Durham. Among other members there living were Sir Robert Sotheron, knight, of New-Elvet, in the city of Durham, who is frequently mentioned 1448-78, in the books of Finchale, Durham, and Coldingham Priors; William Sotheron, chaplain, the conveyer, 1462, of lands in Greencroft, co. Durham, on behalf of Stephen Anstell, dean of Lanchester, who died 1461; and Sir William Sotheron, knight, chaplain of Hampsthwaite, co. York, whose name appears in the will, proved 1536, of Marmaduke Beckwith, of Dacre-in-Nidderdale. The Sotherons of Darrington Hall, co. York (who had, May 26, 1810, from Sir Isaac Heard, Garter King of Arms, Knight, and Ralph Bigland, Norroy King of Arms, Esq., a grant of the arms "gules on a bend indented between six cross crosslets argent, three eagles displayed sable," and crest "an eagle with two heads displayed party per pale argent and gules, the wings semeé of cross crosslets, counterchanged, murally crowned, beaked, and membered or") are also descended from this family resident in Newcastle and co. Durham; their earliest ancestor given in a pedigree entered by them, 1810, at the College of Arms, is William Sotheron, the purchaser, 1603 (temp. Queen Elizabeth), of lands at Holm-in-Spaldingmore, in the East Riding of the county of York, who was doubtless a son of William Sotheron (brother to John Sotheren of Newcastle before-mentioned), of Newcastle-on-Tyne, merchant, by Katharine his wife, daughter of Ralph Willy, of Haughton-le-Side, co. Durham. The subjoined woodcut of the arms of Stephen Sotheron, "argent, a chevron between three branches of southernwood vert; in chief a crescent sable," is taken from the "Carr MS." in Vol. 41 of the Surtees Society's publications.

MARY LOUISA SHEPPARD,

Born Jan^y. 25th, 1836,

Died March 4th, 1842.

See then how soon the flowers of life decay,
How soon terrestrial pleasures fade away ;
A star of comfort for a moment giv'n,
Just rose on earth, then set to rise in heaven.
Faith tells thee, and it tells thee not in vain,
That thou shall meet thine infant yet again,
While yet on earth thine ever circling arms,
Held it securest from surrounding harms ;
Yet even there disease could aim the dart,
Chill the warm cheek and stop the fluttering heart ;
Then far be grief, faith looks beyond the tomb,
And heaven's bright portals sparkle thro' the gloom,
If bitter thoughts and tears in heaven could be,
It is thine infant that should weep for thee.

To the memory of
SUSANNAH WORLD,
who died 18th October, 1842,
in her 29th year.

The closing rite is o'er, and earth has paid
Its closing tribute : never one more just,
More pure, was proffered to a child of dust.

She was meek, so kind, the sainted shade !
Her life flowed on in such an even course
Of duty, full of faith and truth and love.

ADA EMMA HOLMES,
daughter of Nathaniel and Harriet Holmes,
of Hampstead,
Born Nov. 16th, 1826, died May 11th, 1840.
Liv'd to wake each tender passion
And delightful hopes inspire ;
Died to try our resignation,
And direct our wishes higher ;
Rest, sweet child, in gentle slumbers,
Till the resurrection morn ;
Then arise to join the numbers,
That its triumphs shall adorn.
Though thy presence so endearing,
We thy absence now deplore ;
At the Saviour's bright appearing,
We shall meet to part no more.
Thus to thee, O Lord, submitting,
We our dearest pledge resign ;

So young, so good, so fair a maid?

Radiant in beauty,—youthful bloom:—
Her father's pride and hope!—Death's power
(Alas!)
Hath laid Her in the silent tomb!

Dear as thou wert, and justly dear,
We will not weep for thee;

MARTHA,
the beloved wife of James Hartley,

who departed this life
August fifth, MDCCCXLVI, aged XLVII years.

Erected
by her bereaved husband,
who alone can estimate the loss
sustained by himself and his children, whose heart knoweth his own bitterness.
Her reliance was simply on the finished work,
the obedience unto death of the Lord Jesus Christ.
“For us men, and for our salvation.”
Her life was by faith of Him :
her death was precious in His sight,
and full of hope in Him.
The loss is ours, who survive,
to her it was wholly “gain to die.”
“Mark the perfect man and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace.”

Reader,
“Now is the accepted time” but it is short.
If thou wouldst die the “death of the righteous,” thou must live the life of the righteous, be then a follower of her,
who humbly sought to follow Him,
who “went about doing good.”

Omnipotent, immortal, & immense is the Great Creator.

Life's like a winter's day.
Some only breakfast and away;
Others to dinner stay and are full fed;
The oldest one but sups and goes to bed.
Wretched is he that lingers out the day,
He that goes soonest has the least to pay.

The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd winds slowly o'er the lea,
The plowman homeward plods his weary way,
And leaves the world in darkness and to me.

There is another and a better world.

"The world can neither give nor take, or can it comprehend that peace of God which Christ hath brought,

that peace that knows no end."

In 1808 Mr. Pepys was elected a fellow of the Royal Society. Under his direction a voltaic battery of 2,000 double plates of zinc and copper was constructed, with which many of Sir H. Davy's experiments on the magnetic phenomena produced by electricity were made, with the personal assistance of Mr. Pepys and other friends. Come see the place where THE LORD lay.

When thou hadst overcome
the sharpness of death,
Thou didst open the kingdom of Heaven

O ! what are all my sufferings here,
If, Lord, Thou count me meet

Even then this shall be all my plea,
Jesus hath lived—hath died for me.

Aged 72 years.

The Hon. EMILY SUSANNA LAURA WESTBY,
Died June 1870.
Aged 82 years.

“ In Thee, O Lord, have I put my trust,
Let me never be confounded.”

* He was the eldest surviving son and heir of William Westby, of Thornhill, in the county of Dublin, Esq., by Mary, his wife, daughter of George Fletcher, of Tottenham, Esq.; he married, 1815, the Hon. Emily Susanna Laura, eldest daughter of the Right Hon. Sir William Waldegrave, first Baron Radstock, of Castle Town, Admiral of the Red and G.C.B., by Cornelia, his wife, daughter of David Van Lennap, of Smyrna, Esq. His lineal ancestor, from whom he stood fourth in descent, was the Rev. Thomas Westby (son of George Westby, of Rawcliffe, co. Lancaster, Esq., a major in the army), of Clonmel, who, about the time of the Commonwealth, settled in Ireland; his family, which had flourished in Lancashire from early in the sixteenth century, had previously been seated at Westby, Ravenfield, Coningsburgh, Firsby, and elsewhere in the county of York; the Yorkshire and chief branch of the family became extinct in the male line by the death, in 1790, of George Westby (whose wife was Catherine, daughter and heir of John Hirst, of Clough House, co. York, Esq., and great-granddaughter of George Westby, of Gilthwaite, Esq., who died 1671), of Howarth Grange and Gilthwaite, Esq. The Westbys can show a long line of worthy ancestry, almost reaching to the Conquest, and among their alliances appear the names of Byron, Rokeby, Egerton, Worsley, Brereton, Tatton, Molyneux, Ashton, Odingsells, Shirley, Vaux, Resesby, Fitzwilliam, Shuttleworth, Wyrrall, Bright, Hirst, Spencer, D'Arcy, Beckwith, Cromwell, Levett, Norris, Southworth, Barton, Hesketh, Hatfield, Laughton, Talbot, and many others of equal importance. Gilbert Westbye was, temp. Henry III., High Sheriff of the county of Lancaster, for twelve years, 1233—46. The Yorkshire and Lancashire County Histories and Heraldic Visitations, "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," together with the Harleian, Barritt, Holme, and other genealogical MSS., give much information satisfactorily proving the descent and former importance of the family. The annexed illustration is a facsimile of the family armorial bearings as given in the Visitation of Yorkshire, 1584, Harl. MSS., 1394, and the following note appears above the pedigree in the MSS. :—"The crest and armes of Joha Westby, of Mowbricke, in Com. Lancastriæ;" from the Visitation of Lancashire, 1613, Harl. MSS., 1437, we learn that these arms were :—"Geuen to John Westby, in co. York, 20 of May, 2 yere of Eliz., 1560, by Larawance Dalton."

The Arms and Crest of Westby.

The entire reconstruction of Newgate Gaol. Roger's Almshouses were also erected in 1858. In addition to his other labours, Mr. Bunning had to design and superintend the fittings and decorations for the Lord Mayor's banquet in Guildhall, and for other entertainments. At the preparations for reception of the future Princess of Wales in March, 1863, it may be said he received his death blow, having exposed himself much to the cold and wet, he was fairly borne down by fatigue ; he one day sank down under it, and had to be conveyed from the Mansion House to his home. Born 18th August, 1808 ;

* Jeremiah Wombwell was born at Du End, Saffron Walden, Essex, in 1783. When a boy he devoted much time to the breeding and rearing of birds, pigeons, rabbits, dogs, and other domestic animals, and beyond this had no idea of becoming the proprietor of a menagerie ; in fact he became one by force of accident rather than of circumstances. At the London Docks he saw some fine boa-constrictors. Most of the showmen were afraid or ignorant of managing them, and from this cause the prices gave way a little. At length Mr. Wombwell ventured to offer £75 for a pair. They were sold to him, and in the course of three weeks he realised considerably more than that sum by their exhibition, a circumstance which made him partial to the serpent species, as it was his first introduction to the profession. At about this time Mr. Wombwell, who was by trade a cord-wainer, kept a bird and shoemaker's shop in Compton Street, Soho, and subsequently exhibited with great success his boa-constrictors in Piccadilly. From this time he became a regular showman. The cost of Mr. Wombwell's three establishments were enormous, averaging £35 per day. He died at North-allerton, in Yorkshire.

* Mr. Farady was born in London, 1794. He was apprenticed to the trade of bookbinding, but his mechanical genius and talent for investigation procured him the ultimate patronage of Sir Humphrey Davy. Through his interest he was taken into the laboratory of the Royal Institution of London, where he was enabled to pursue his studies. In 1827, he published his work on "Chemical Manipulations," and from that time continued a regular contributor to the "Philosophical Transactions," spreading his investigations over the wide field of electricity. He published three volumes, on "Experimental Researches in Electricity," in which are included his researches into the magnetic nature of oxygen gas, light, and other important subjects. A true philosopher, he rejected all posts of honour, confining himself to his sphere in the Royal Institution, where the charm of his lectures was a continual attraction to those who delighted to follow him through the paths of magnetic science. In private life his character was irreproachable, and characterised by great goodness and humanity.

He bought the celebrated Tankerville Collection of Shells, for which he gave £6,000. In Affectionate remembrance of

FANNY,

The much-loved wife of George Pettifer,

Who calmly fell asleep in Jesus, August 11th, 1864,

Aged 31.

Oh, thou, for ever fond, for ever true!
Has Death for ever torn thee from my view?
Thy voice that counselled, charmed, consoled and bless'd,
Thy deep solicitude that found no rest,
But in completion of some pure design,
To make my happiness the spring of thine.
 Gone, but not lost—a living link
 To bind us closer to our God,
 A treasure rich laid up in store,
 To be restored when time's no more.

To the Memory of
JOSEPH WOLDEMAR KRETZSCHMAR,
The beloved child of L. W. Kretzschmar,
Born April 28th, 1855 ; died January 22nd, 1860.

Adieu ! my sweet one, sleep in peace
Upon thy pillow lone and chill ;
Thy little life was doomed to cease—
But ah ! I fondly love thee still.

Thy spirit like a meteor bright,
Illum'd my heart with hopes of day ;
'Twas but to plunge in deeper night,
And chase my cherished hopes away.

Why did I love so sweet a rose,
And rest on it my thoughts for years ?
Thy loss hath added to my woes,
And drown'd my rising joys in tears.

Yet still farewell, my blighted flower,
Thy angel form I'll ne'er forget ;
But think on thee until the hour,
When life's dull star to me hath set.

Sacred to the Memory of
SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE,
Poet, Philosopher, Theologian.

This truly great and good man resided for
The last nineteen years of his life
In this Hamlet.

He quitted "the body of this death"
July 25th, 1834,

In the sixty-second year of his age.
Of his profound learning and discursive genius
His literary works are an imperishable record.

To his private worth,
His social and Christian virtues,
James and Ann Gillman,
The friends with whom he lived
During the above period, dedicate this tablet.

Under the pressure of a long
And most painful disease,
His disposition was unalterably sweet and angelic.

He was an ever-enduring, ever-loving friend :

The gentlest and kindest teacher :

The most engaging home-companion.

"O! framed for calmer times, and nobler hearts,

O studious poet, eloquent for truth!

Philosopher! contemning wealth and death,

Yet docile, childlike, full of life and love."

Here on thy monumental stone thy friends inscribe thy worth;

Reader, for the world, mourn;

Monumental Inscriptions
IN THE FOUNDLING HOSPITAL CHAPEL.

"CAPTAIN THOMAS CORAM,"
Whose Name will never want a Monument
So long as this Hospital shall subsist,
Was born in the year 1668;
A Man eminent in that most eminent virtue,
The Love of Mankind;
Little attentive to his Private Fortune,
And refusing many Opportunities of increasing it,
His Time and Thoughts were continually employed
In Endeavours to promote the Public Happiness,
Both in this Kingdom and elsewhere;
Particularly in the Colonies of North America;
And his Endeavours were many Times crowned
With the desired Success.
His unwearied Solicitation for above Seventeen Years together (Which would have baffled the Patience and Industry
Of any Man less zealous in doing Good),
And his application to persons of distinction, of both sexes,
Obtained at length the Charter of the Incorporation (Bearing Date the 17th of October, 1739),
FOR THE MAINTENANCE AND EDUCATION
OF EXPOSED AND DESERTED YOUNG CHILDREN,
By which many Thousands of Lives
May be preserved to the Public, and employed in a frugal
And honest Course of Industry.
He died the 29th March, 1751, in the 84th year of his age;
Poor in Worldly Estate, rich in Good Works,
And was buried, at his own Desire, in the Vault underneath this Chapel (the first there deposited), at the east end thereof,
Many of the Governors and other Gentlemen
Attending the funeral to do Honour to his Memory.
Reader,
Thy Actions will shew whether thou art sincere
In the Praises thou mayest bestow on him;
And if thou hast Virtue enough to commend his Virtues,
Forget not to add also the Imitation of them

Weep not, dear parents, do not weep,
On death's cold bed I only sleep ;
At the last morn through Christ to rise,
An angel to my native skies.

Like some fair plant thy daughter grew
(And none so fair, so sweet to view),
For thirteen years thy hope and pride;
The fourteenth came, I droop'd and died.

On his honorable industry, a large capital,
He took a distinguished part with the monied-interest
In its financial transactions with government,
The prosperity and glory
Of his country, he ever cordially supported.
His mind, naturally sagacious and comprehensive, was Cultivated by a liberal and religious education ;
Benevolent and manly in his character,
He promoted, while living, the happiness of the Different branches of his numerous family,
And attached to himself the affection and respect of A large circle of relatives and friends.
Enduring a long and painful illness with Christian Submission, he was taught therein more feelingly to Acknowledge the utter vanity of all earthly pursuits,
And to rest his hopes of eternal happiness on the Mercy and favour of God
Through the merits of the Redeemer.
His widow offers this affectionate tribute to his Memory.

1818, aged 36 years.
Farewell, dear friend, thy loss to us is great,
Who's left behind to mourn thy last retreat ;
A tender wife, and a mother dear,
We daily found in you whilst living here.
A neighbour kind, a friend sincere and just,
Was proved in her who now lies in this dust.

Celebrated corn operator,

ANN FLAXMAN,
The virtuous and beloved wife of
John Flaxman, R.A.P.S.,

On the 7th of February,
In the year of Our Lord, 1820,
And the 60th year of her age.
Under the same stone
Is interred her husband,
JOHN FLAXMAN, R.A.P.S.,*
Whose mortal life
Was a constant preparation
For a blessed immortality.

* Mr. John Flaxman, was born at York, 1755. From boyhood he displayed a remarkable genius for modelling in clay. In 1787 he visited Rome, where, during a residence of seven years,

His angelic spirit returned to the Divine Giver
On the 7th of December, 1826,
In the 72nd year of his age.
Also in the same vault
Are deposited the mortal remains of
MARY ANN FLAXMAN,
Sister of the above John Flaxman,
Whose gentle spirit returned to the Divine Giver
On the 17th of April, 1833, in the 65th year of her age.

CAROLINE PHOEBE BLAIR,
Daughter of General Sir R. Blair, K.G., Bath,
Who departed this life
The 15th of October, 1817, in the 17th year of her age.

he executed his celebrated designs in outline from Homer, Æschylus and Danté.

These were engraved and published, as were some which he made from Hesiod.

Whilst at Rome he also executed the splendid group from Ovid's Metamorphoses entitled "The Fury of Athamas;" consisting of four figures larger than life.

For this work he received only £600; an amount very much below the cost. It was executed for the Earl of Bristol. In 1794 he returned to England and executed the monument for Lord Mansfield, now in Westminster Abbey. For this he received £2,500. After this he produced a large number of fine works, and was considered the greatest of modern sculptors.

His collections of drawings and models he bequeathed to the University of London, to form a Flaxman Gallery.

To the Memory of

ELIZABETH,

The wife of John Soane, Architect.

She died the 22nd November, 1815.

With distinguished Talents she united an amiable
And affectionate heart.

Her Piety was unaffected, her Integrity undeviating;
Her Manners displayed alike Decision and Energy, Kindness and Suavity.

These, the peculiar Characteristics of her Mind,
Remained untainted by an extensive Intercourse
With the World.

Stranger.

If virtue o'er thy Bosom bear Control,
If thine the generous, thine th' exalted Soul—
Stranger, approach; this consecrated Earth
Demands thy Tribute to departed Worth.
Beneath this Tomb thy kindred Spirit sleeps;
Here Friendship sighs, here fond Affection weeps;
Here to the Dust, life's dearest Charm resigned,
Leaves but the dregs of ling'ring time behind;
Yet, one bright Ray of light the Grave is given—
The virtuous die not, they survive in Heaven.

To WILLIAM KITCHINER, M.D.,
Possessing a heart of unbounded kindness,
United to an intellect
Of singular acuteness, diligence and Comprehensiveness ;
Whose life was an epitome of that beautiful spirit of Christianity which teaches us to be " Humble, lowly, trusting in God."
He from an early period devoted himself to knowledge,
For the purpose of benevolence ;
And, among various other objects embraced by his Enlarged mind, was deeply conversant with medical Science,
Which his fortune rendered it unnecessary for him
To pursue as a profession.
An accomplished musical theorist and composer ;
An improver of the telescope ;
And, by his various writings, largely contributed to Promote the happiness of his fellow-creatures.
Deeply regretted by a numerous circle of sincere Friends,
He closed a life of unaffected piety, charity and utility,
On the 27th day of February, 1827, aged 48 years.
To perpetuate the memory of so excellent a man,
And as a merited tribute of duty, affection and respect,
This monument has been erected by his son,
